

mercy foundation youth awards 2017 video competition

Details for Teachers

1. Introduction

The Mercy Foundation Youth Awards is a video competition open to students in years 10, 11 and 12 across Australia. The video competition is aimed at developing the advocacy skills of students, encouraging them to become informed about social justice issues and to consider what action they and their community can take to help protect the rights of vulnerable people in our community.

2. Competition Details:

The theme for 2017 is:

Human Trafficking and Slavery in Australia.

Human trafficking and slavery includes: servitude, forced labour, deceptive recruiting for labour and services, forced marriage and debt bondage. Some of these practices are happening in Australia today.

Human trafficking and slavery is a crime and an abuse of human rights.

Students are asked to develop a campaign that

- (a) Explores ONE of the following issues and
- (b) Includes a plan of action that they and their community can take to help address this issue.

The issues are:

- Human trafficking and slavery in domestic servitude
- Human trafficking and slavery in restaurant work
- Human trafficking and slavery in agricultural work

Human trafficking and slavery involves a number of illegal practices. Students must consider one of these nominated issues only.

3. Work in a Group

We recommend students work in a group of 2 to 5. Entrants are not permitted to be members of more than one team. Each team can only submit one entry.

4. Safety First!

UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES are students to enter, trespass or video private premises or commercial establishments or attempt to perform unsolicited interviews with persons unknown to them regarding human trafficking. Human trafficking is a criminal offence and students may be inadvertently placing themselves at risk if they attempt any of the above.

We recommend students act out scenarios and interviews in a safe environment, such as their school or home.

5. Important Dates

The closing date is midnight on 23 June 2017. Winners will be announced in the week commencing 18 September 2017.

6. Judging

The judging committee comprises staff and Board members of the Mercy Foundation and an expert on human trafficking and slavery. Entries will be judged according to their content, accuracy of information, creativity, originality, effort, quality, persuasiveness and overall visual presentation.

7. Incorporating the Awards into your curriculum

The Awards may be a project of the school's Social Justice group, or teachers may wish to incorporate the competition into the current curriculum modules or used as a formative task in the RE Studies unit "Working for Justice", in IT, economics, commerce, PDHPE, English and Art.

The Global Slavery Index 2016 estimates that there are 4,300 people living in slavery in Australia
